We need SB 100

In the wake of California's 2020 fire season, the gravity of climate change is growing increasingly burdensome. Californians simply cannot afford to be continually punished with catastrophic wildfires, devastating drought, and extreme weather events.

As someone who grew up here, I can attest how devastating it is to see our communities [human and otherwise] eviscerated by wildfires. I know the fear of packing up my life in an emergency duffle-bag year after year, hoping that fire suppression and climate change have not, at last, caught up to us.

These horrors will not cease without intervention. Fires are just one of the many reasons why we NEED SB 100. This is not the time to despair, but to take action. Clear problems require clear solutions.
