Full HVAC Heat Pump Systems

I am a California resident interested in applying for the point of sale rebates program. I am also a retired person with a moderate income and live in a condominium that I own. First, I want to know if condominium units that have independent heating and cooling responsibility qualify for the point of sale rebate program. I have a faulty HVAC system and would like to get a new fully functional energy efficient heat pump system. I know that entails ductwork as well as the mechanism itself. Will the point of sale rebates program cover the cost of additional elements of a system such as ductwork as well as the heat pump?
