HVAC SYSTEM INSTALL

We are in the process of buying a new HVAC system for our home and understand that the federal IRA bill contained a rebate to install heat pumps. It looks like it might be significant enough to wait but, since it is to be administered by the state, the program has not been released yet. The local HVAC installers do not know about this program so it looks as if there is still some work to do there to get them educated. The question is, if we proceed to install a system today, will it be eligible later in 2024 for whatever rebate is available based upon our income qualifications?
