Dear Committee,

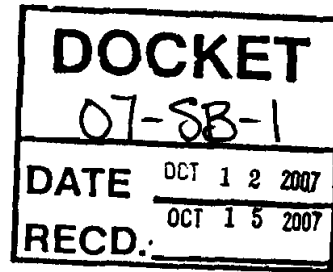

Kudos for requiring new buildings to be more efficient.
Careful not to apply too stringent of energy efficiency requirements to the point that it will hinder or impede solar power development in existing homes and businesses.
Please keep in mind that we (California) want to be less dependent on foreign energy suppliers and lessen our carbon footprint in our planet.
By asking too much for energy efficiency for present structures you decrease the investment in PV and other alternative power as owners may decide against both based costs.

Sincerely,

Gustavo Blankenburg
