WITH: Britt Wilson, Cultural Resources Director for the Morongo Band of Mission Indians
SUBJECT: Location of San Gabriel project.
Mr. Wilson had received the Environmental Office's standard notification letter to Native American groups informing the Morongo Band of the proposed San Gabriel Generating Station project. He called to inquire about the location of the project because the letter had not included a map, and he could not identify the project on the Commission website because the letter stated the project was in Rancho Cucamonga but did not provide the project name. I apologized for the incomplete information and told Mr. Wilson that the proposed project was on the site of the existing Etiwanda Generating Station. I explained that the site had been greatly altered by the construction of the old power plant in the 1950s. He then stated that the Morongo Band would not have any concerns, and that the provisions of Public Resources Code § 5097.98 would cover any impacts to human remains encountered unexpectedly during construction, which, he stated, was well known to developers.
