I am write to protest the inclusion of the PCT provision in the 2008 addendum to title 24 of the California Building code. Like many, many of the other provisions of title 24, this is overreach of the state. I know Title 24, I have felt its stupid lash in my recent construction. I tell everyone I know how to circumvent the imposition. The PCT provision is absolutely obnoxious. Title 24 already make new construction much more expensive with no benefit except more wasted money paid to consultants to do calculations which should have already been done by the building designer.

I urge its removal from the proposed revision.
