Dear Chris,

I don't need the State of California to determine what temperature my house should be. This will likely lead to people heating their homes with alternate methods such as using their fire place, which would lead to more contaminants being dispersed into our atmosphere and thus contributing to global warming. Other methods, such as using a space heater, will likely contribute to accidental fire and death. This is the wrong solution and will create more problems than it fixes.

Sincerely,
Sean
