Subject: Programmable Communication Thermostats (PCT)

Commission:

Regarding Programmable Communication Thermostats (PCT), I see where California Energy Commission 2008 Building Efficiency Standards (Page 64), known as Title 24, specifically state: "The PCT shall not allow customer changes to thermostat settings during emergency events."

If you ever feebly try exporting this kind of communism to Texas, beware ... DON'T MESS WITH TEXAS! Your state has enough trouble with surreal real estate valuation and homosexual encroachment into the classroom, among other woes. Expect an exodus from your state if you dare enact this nonsense on top of all the other ridiculousness. Careful consideration of this concern is greatly appreciated.
