I think the state's energy establishment needs less regulation, not more. it is well known by all right-thinking people that it is the interference of government- legislative, judicial, and executive - that has resulted in such high energy costs in kalifornia. Only the intelligentsia are surprised that "buy high, sell low" doesn't work. It is well known by all right-thinking people that nuclear power without government intervention is the safest and cheapest energy provider on the planet.
