The thought that government will dictate a person's electrical needs is so communistic as to be ludicrous.

While the people on the commission feel that they are helping the situation, in reality, they are only delaying the inevitable. If building permits are issued, there will be more people living in this state. You cannot refute numbers. More facilities will need to be built. To think otherwise is to hide your head in the sand. If there isn't enough utilities or water to support more growth, then the decision needs to be made as such.
