RE: Docket #07-BTSD-1

To Whom It May Concern:

We are strongly opposed to the decision to install thermostats in private homes and companies that can be controlled by any government entity or energy management control system. We don't want government in either our bedrooms or our living rooms. This regulation is extremely intrusive into the privacy of one's home and private property.

We support the building of new energy sources and letting the free market forces handle the allocation of energy. The free market has proven to be a much more efficient and effective agent than government bureaucracy in dealing with such matters.

Sincerely,

Bud Arnold
