

EnergySense's Three-Party Contracting

DOCKET
08-CRI-01
DATE _____
RECD. MAR 18 2009

- Testing scheduled directly with builder
- Test results reported directly to builder
- EnergySense accountable to builder

- Bids for installation and testing services submitted and evaluated on a standalone basis
- No markup of EnergySense testing prices by installing company
- Invoicing and collection services provided by installing company in exchange for ability to offer more comprehensive set of services to builder
- Builder notifies installing entity of failed tests and arranges installation rework

- EnergySense raters are independent contractors to the installing company
- EnergySense raters have:
 - No ownership interest
 - No debt agreement
 - No employee/employer relationship
 - No advocacy or recommendation of installing company
- Contract not exclusive
 - Installing company not obligated to use EnergySense
 - EnergySense not obligated to perform testing for installing company
 - EnergySense free to market testing services directly to builders.
- EnergySense sets prices for testing services based upon market conditions and own revenue and profit goals
- EnergySense receives full payment of bid price for testing services from installing company as a pass-through from the builder

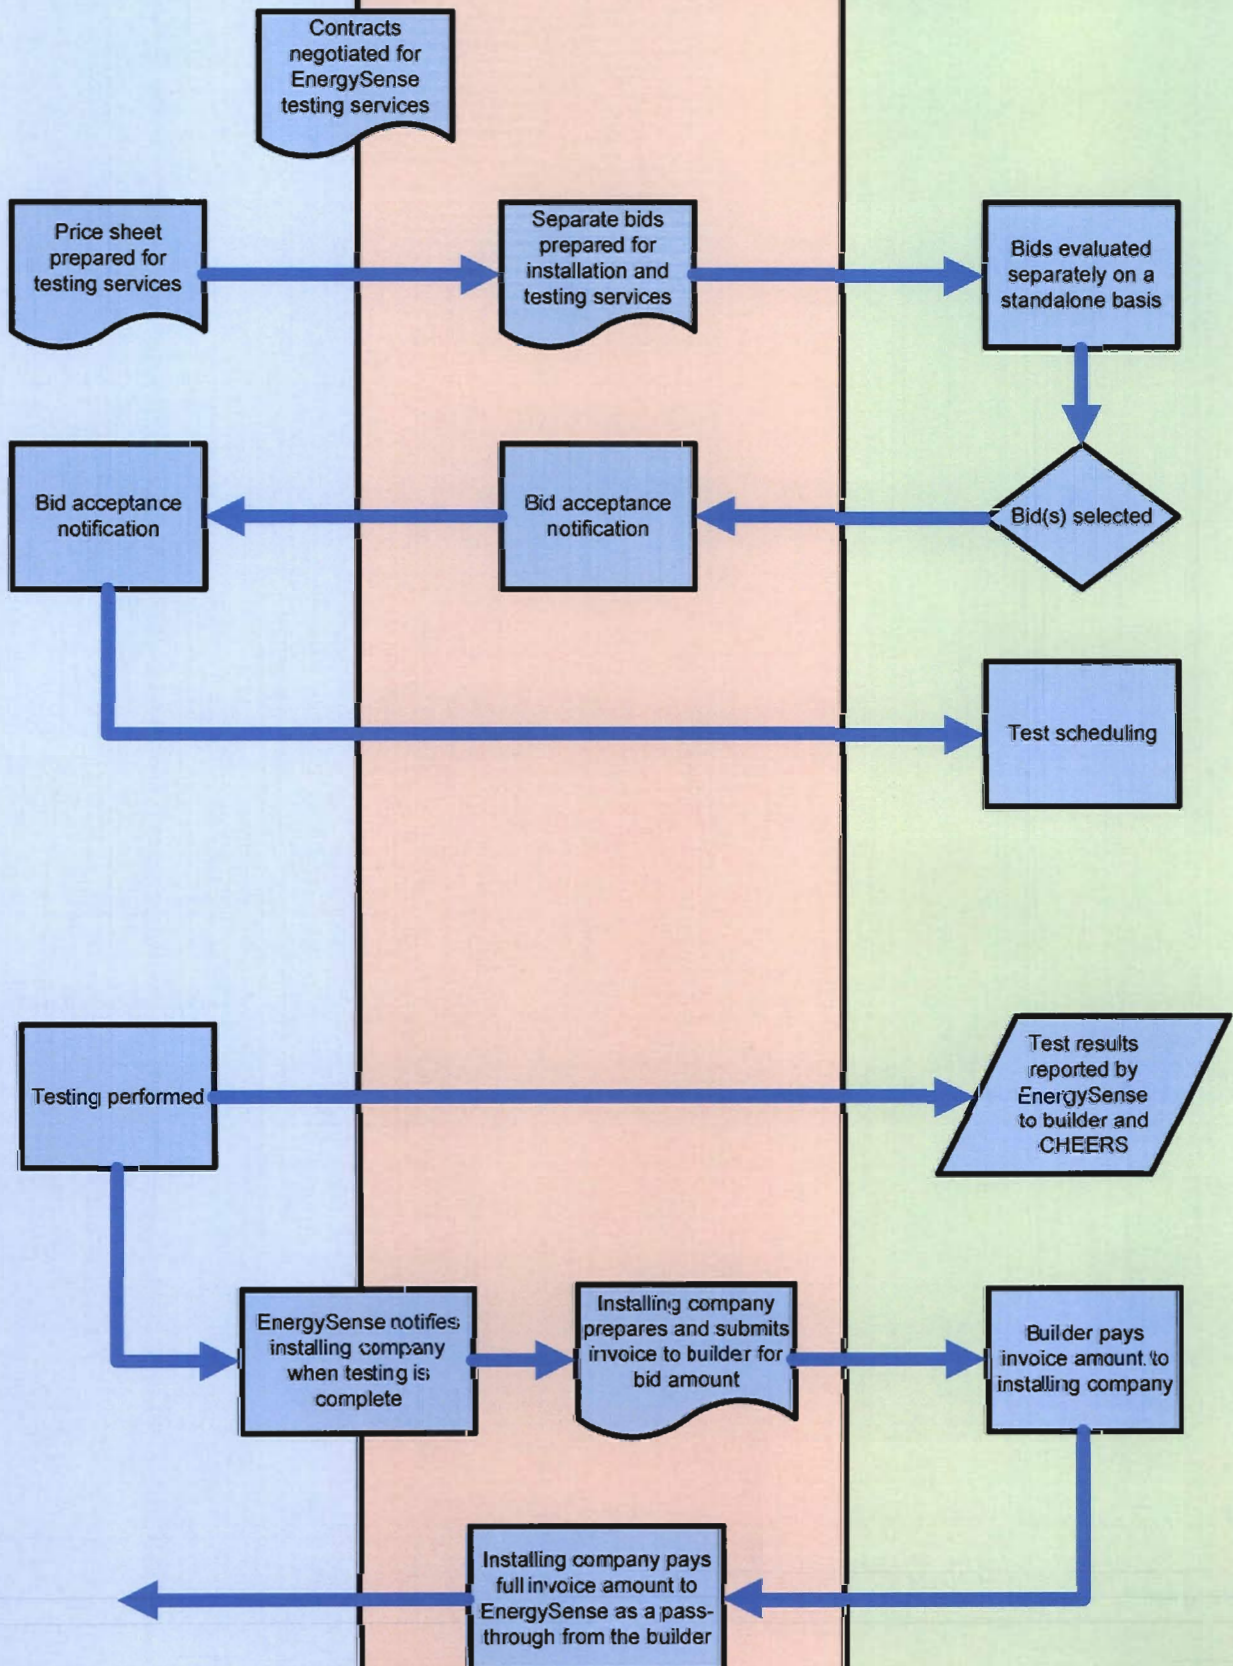

A

Contracting Process for Field Verification and Testing Services

EnergySense, Inc.

Installing Company

Builder

B