While you are looking at the power consumption of TV's, check out Comcast's latest tuner for HDTV's. It has a hard disc drive that operates 24 hours a day even if you turn off the tuner. The only way to shut the unit down is to unplug it from the wall. I have to leave my cabinet door open even with an exhaust fan. It still keeps the cabinet at 88 degrees. What a waste of power since we only have the TV on a couple of hours a day.
