Mr. Solario, et.al.

When were the citizens of Santee Ca. going to be notified about the proposed Quail Brush generating project ? So far very few of the citizens of our town know about this project. We have a nice town and to have this "peaker" plant installed near our town was to say the least a huge slap in the face.

I have lived in Santee for almost 25 years, I have seen a lot of progress, some for the better and some not, this is not progress, this is a step backward.

This proposed project will be 1500 feet outside our city limits and the exhaust will travel eastward over a high school football /track field ,a little league ball field, and into homes in the area that house elderly and young kids some with respiration issues, these people have not been given the courtesy of a notice of proposed construction by the companies involved. When was that going to happen ?

We were told by our local power facility SDG&E ,that the "Sunrise Power Link" was supposed to reduce the need for more generation plants here in San Diego county. The "Sunrise Link" is currently under constuction and now we are learning that Quail Brush project is supposed to fill in the sags due to electrical demand that the "Sunrise Link" can't deliver, sounds like a boondoggle to me.

I think this project is a scheme for people outside of California to get rich at our expense, because we all know in the long run, WE the citizens of San Diego County ratepayers will all pay for this project in higher utilities for a project that should not be even considered.

There is a grass roots citizen involvment brewing and more and more citizens are finding out about this project and are getting more and more concerned, and are willing to put up a fight.

On Docket 11-AFC-3 dated November 30, 2011 the City of San Diego says the are some land use issues, noise level issues, visual quality issues, socioeconomic issues, AIR QUALITY and other global issues, hazardous materials. Not to mention archeological area resources, local biology, waste management and most important Water resources.

We the citizens of Santee are tired of being San Diego's dumping ground for projects that adversely affect our quality of life.

I urge you, Mr. Solairo, et.al, please consider putting this beast on somebody else's back porch.

Very Respectfully

James M Ackley

Concerned Santee citizen
