RE: Mission Trails Power Plant

I live in Encinitas (N. San Diego) and my husband and I often visit Santee and the Mission Trails Regional Park. There is not much nature left in San Diego County and we really appreciate this beautiful park. Allowing a power plant to be built next to an environmentally protected area is a travesty. I urge that this project be dismantled and that an area be picked that is more suitable, rather than a residential and protected park area in Santee.

If the desires of the citizens mean anything, I urge you to consider withholding approval for this project. It would be more appropriate miles away from residences and parks (maybe in the desert somewhere). The problem is not only the unsightly view, but the toxic pollution right next to a protected park area and near residences. This area should not be re-zoned. It is not an appropriate place for a power plant.

Thank you for your help.
