Background

Public Resources Code Section 25301 requires the Energy Commission to prepare an IEPR every two years that includes assessments and forecasts of all aspects of energy industry supply, production, transportation, delivery and distribution, demand, and prices. The Energy Commission uses these assessments and forecasts to develop energy policies that conserve resources, protect the environment, ensure energy reliability, enhance the state's economy, and protect public health and safety.

In the year following publication of the biennial IEPR, the Energy Commission is required to publish an energy policy review to provide updated information and analyses on topics covered in the biennial IEPR or identify new energy issues that have arisen since publication of the IEPR. The Draft 2012 IEPR Update was prepared in response to this requirement.

The IEPR Lead Commissioner issued a scoping order on February 22, 2012, that identified topics that would be covered in the report. Eleven public workshops were held between February and June 2012 on a variety of topics, including combined heat and power, electricity and natural gas demand forecast, the impacts of climate change on the energy system, the renewable action plan, and electricity infrastructure issues in southern California. All workshop documents, including agendas, background material, transcripts, presentations, and public comments, are available at:
