(Revised) Notice of Petroleum Market Advisory Committee Meeting

The Petroleum Market Advisory Committee (PMAC), an advisory body created by the California Energy Commission, will conduct a meeting to finalize their report to the Energy Commission on California’s vulnerabilities to petroleum price hikes. Since their previous meeting on November 29, 2016, PMAC has focused on summarizing meetings and discussions on the 2015 increases in gasoline prices, and recommendations on how California could proceed to prevent this type of occurrence.

Members of the PMAC, Commissioner Janea A. Scott, and other Energy Commission commissioners, may attend and participate.

Background

The California Energy Commission established the Petroleum Market Advisory Committee to better understand factors and conditions related to petroleum price fluctuations, impacts on consumers, and policy options that may affect markets. The committee consists of five petroleum fuels market experts appointed by the Energy Commission. These leading energy economists and experts provide the Energy Commission and state regulators with independent advice and insights on issues affecting the market, from local policies to global events. Since the February 18, 2015, explosion at the Torrance Refinery, PMAC attention has been focused on the three accelerated increases in California gasoline prices that occurred in that year and the reasons for California's continued elevated gasoline price compared to the United States average.

Agenda

Refer to the last page of this notice for the agenda (page 5).
